

School Psychology Services

School Psychologists provide psycho-educational information, through consultative processes, assessment and planned interventions for schools and parents. The key focus is consultation, assessment of students and provision of information relevant to students' learning needs. Support is also provided for staff, students and families regarding educational, mental health, social/emotional and behavioural issues.

Services provided

- Consultation with school staff regarding strategies to achieve curriculum access and participation.
- Assessment of students' intellectual and academic strengths and weaknesses.
- Assessment of students' social, emotional and behavioural development.
- Consultation with teachers and parents regarding the outcomes and implications of assessment.
- Provide recommendations and advice for educational adjustments and intervention.
- Liaison with relevant community based professionals concerning the social/emotional wellbeing of students and their families.
- Provision of whole class programs for students, including interpersonal communication, social skills, relaxation, problem solving and goal setting.
- Provision of professional development programs for school staff in psycho-educational areas such as the educational implications of specific disorders and syndromes and developing an understanding of the educational and environmental influences on mental health.
- Provide information to groups such as school councils, professional associations and community organizations regarding psycho-educational issues and topics.
- Provide school communities with support following critical incidents or traumatic events.